Leaving behind the 2012

2012 is ending, a year of great suffering for the European Union and for our country. A McKinsey Institute report highlights the decline in private investment, which aggravates the reduction of public ones; on lavoce.info some economists call the urgent need for reform in the EU for boosting development. Lucrezia Reichlin points out that the decline in Italian comes from afar.

Reding: "Europe is the solution, not the problem"

On EurActiv Viviane Reding, Vice-President and Commissioner for Justice, Fundamental Rights and Citizenship of the EU, released an interview with Giampiero Gramaglia of EurActiv Italy on the current state of European Union. Reding, regarding the economic crisis effects on the EU, acknowledged that this has taken the Union unprepared.

Where does it take ideas the european ruling class?

One of the most reliable sources are the Think Tank (TT), centers of reflection on political and social issues. ISPI has published in its newsletter, a paper that presents and lists the most European TT (35). The term TT dates back to World War II, from the military jargon, and indicated groups of strategic reflection on post-war problems; the first one was RAND Corporation, very close to the Department of War/Defense.
